modern twist," according to a press release. The goal of the temporary menu is to bring awareness to the local cuisine, and raise the international profile of Finnish culinary culture.

"In-flight dining is an important part of a distinctive travel experience," Maarit Keränen, Finnair's head of service concept, said in the release. "Both Pekka and Tomi have a fresh style that is distinct from the mainstream."

Terävä concentrates his food on classic Nordic flavors, with a menu featuring options such as reindeer filet and organic barley, and Björck puts an Asian spin on Finnish cuisine with dishes such as butternut squash dressed in Asian spices, and Japanese ramen noodles with spicy salmon. Each menu will also be accompanied with complementary prize-winning wines.
