Finnair Set to Operate Seasonal Toronto-Helsinki Service

By James Ruqia
October 20, 2013 7:13 PM

Next summer Finnair will operate seasonal service to Toronto, with upgraded two-class Airbus A330 widebody aircraft. Schedules will be timed to create easy connections throughout Finnair's network, particularly in the Nordic-Baltic region, Eastern Europe and Russia.

The Toronto-Helsinki route will also be included in the joint business between Finnair and fellow oneworld partners American Airlines, British Airways and Iberia on traffic between the EU and North America, meaning that all four carriers will codeshare the route with identical fares and conditions on North America-EU itineraries. The joint business makes Toronto yet another gateway for one-stop trips between Helsinki and dozens of cities in Canada and the United States.

The service will operate from June 1 to Sept. 21 on Tuesdays, Friday and Sundays and will last about 8.5 hours. Flights depart Toronto at 10:35 p.m. and arrive in Helsinki the next day at 1:45 p.m. local time. Return flights depart Helsinki at 5 p.m. and arrive in Toronto at 6:45 p.m.
