New Zealand's Whanganui National Park is home to the Bridge to Nowhere, a remnant of a long-abandoned settlement in a lush valley.

London: Climb aboard the Hogwarts Express vintage steam engine at the Warner Bros. Studio Tour London's expanded Making of Harry Potter section, opening Thursday. The new permanent exhibition also features a re-creation of the film series' Platform 9¾.

South Africa: The private Sabi Sabi Game Reserve next to Kruger National Park brims with elephants, white rhino, leopards, zebras, lions and many more species. Spot them on custom safaris with Extraordinary Journeys that include three nights at the reserve and four nights in Cape Town, plus transfers and most meals, from $2,810.

Landmark

New Zealand: The Bridge to Nowhere, a relic of a settlement abandoned in 1942 and overgrown by forest, provides views of a hidden valley in Whanganui National Park. Reach it via a jet boat ride on the Whanganui River or by hiking or mountain biking the Mangapurua Track from Whakahoro. www.tourismnewzealand.com.
