

'Breaking Bad' exhibition in New York

By Jeanne Cooper

August 8, 2013

New exhibition

New York: While the first of the final eight episodes of AMC's "Breaking Bad" airs tonight, the Museum of the Moving Image already boasts costumes, props and videos from the critically acclaimed TV series. "From Mr. Chips to Scarface: Walter White's Transformation in 'Breaking Bad'" is on view through Oct. 27. www.movingimage.us.

Sightseeing

Japan: Kyoto's new hop-on, hop-off tour bus - the city's first - includes six World Heritage Sites among the 17 stops for shrines, temples and other attractions. Departing hourly from Kyoto Station on weekends and holidays, the tour costs $25, including English audio headset rental.

www.kyoto-lab.jp/hirubus/indexe.html.

New tour

Italy: Pope Francis I as much as Julia Roberts' movie inspires Perillo Tours' new "Eat, Pray, Love" itinerary. The off-season (Nov. -April) tour includes four nights in Rome, three in Florence and visits to Assisi, Pisa, Siena and Chianti, plus an audience with the new pope; from $2,390 per person.

www.perillotours.com.

New hotel

Costa Rica: The 172-room Sheraton San Jose Hotel may be in the capital's Escazu business district, but leisure travelers will also appreciate its eighth-floor restaurant offering organic, farm-to-table fare and panoramic views; chic poolside and lobby bars; and easy airport access. Nightly rates from $140. www.sheraton.com.

National park

Gabon: Of the 13 national parks created in 2002, Loango National Park may have the most diversity and density of wildlife, including forest elephants and buffalos, western lowland gorillas and chimpanzees, and body-surfing hippos. Africa's Eden offers a variety of lodgings inside the park. www.gabon-nature.com, www.africas-eden.com.

