Gay travelers may have boarded a gay cruise or attended gay Disney days or even explored gay neighborhoods in buzzing cities—but an entire gay destination? Come next April, gay dreams will come gay true for vacationers heading to Thailand, courtesy of TropOut. From April 3 to 9, the new, unique LGBTQ-themed travel experience is transforming the popular resort area of Bang Tao Beach into an exclusively gay getaway, and tickets are on sale now.

Taking the motto of “chill, party and explore,” TropOut encourages gay travelers to gather in one particular spot, explore the culture and party on with new, like-minded friends. The first destination for their inaugural trip is Thailand, considered one of the gay-friendliest countries in Asia. Up to 1,100 discerning travelers will make Bang Tao Beach in Phuket their stomping ground for the week, offered exclusive access to popular Xana Beach Club and Nikki Beach and entertained by myriad performances and all night partying with DJs. Of course, it’s not all about the nightlife. Travelers are encouraged to explore the culture and sights with excursions that include island tours, cooking classes, snorkeling and cruising.

In honor of gay pride month, TropOut is extending an early bird promotion where travelers booking and paying before June 30th. A six-night package for TropOut begins at $1,295 per person (flight not included but, hey, open bar is!).

While in Thailand, spend a few days in Bangkok, the buzzing metropolis known for historic sites, iconic street food and a thriving shopping scene. Preferred Hotels offers four well appointed, luxury hotels that are the perfect home-away-from-home in the dynamic city.
